Shenandoah, the Immense 3000 Foot War Spectacle for Today.

Confederate troops hidden on the mountain tops, where overhanging mountain tops, where overhanging tree branches are silhouetted against the misty valley of the Shenandoah; the beautiful river, silver in the light of fading day; the Federals zealously guarding their camp against any attempts to enter it by the enemy; such is the beautiful sight to be beheld in Shenandoah, the great three-reel Civil war feature at the Breed theatre. One thousand soldiers appear in the terthousand soldiers appear in the terrific awe-inspiring battle of Winchester, and quite as bewildering and thrilling as anything ever seen in a motion picture, is the escape from Richmond prison, and the subsequent midnight combat, in which nothing is seen but the flashes of the guns, and the beiching of the cannon in the in-tensity of the night's darkness. The ombardment of Fort Sumpter, Sherdan's historic ride and the quaintly beautiful social side of life in the days the great struggle are seen. attle scenes have never been equalled this city for their accuracy of deil, and as every scene was photo-aphed upon the very ground made mous in history, the big feature for day becomes a veritable gem. This picture can be seen for today only, and the evening performances will com-thence at 7 o'clock sharp. The Treachery of a Scar, is another well balanced bill of dramatic and comedy photo-plays is being shown at this popular theatre today neaded by a thrilling three reel detective drama. The Female Raffles, a pic-ture that shows the adventures of an American detective in Paris, his skill against one of the cleverest of lady criminals, the baffling chase she leads him, and how she is finally caught makes up one of the best detective ictures that has ever been exhibited. in addition to this special feature there are a number of interesting subjects. The Foreign Spy is an Amercan drama and tells how a spy is cleverly outwitted by a young couple. His Master's Double is a funny European comedy. The Strange Way is one of those delightful Reliance dramas and proves that clothes do not always make the man and that love is greater than riches. Making of Tapestry is an educational picture that will interest all and shows how the different kinds of tapestry are made. ### DAVIS THEATRE.

The Chocolate Soldier.

Light operas may come and light operas may go, but The Chocolate Soldier, which Mr. Whitney is offering this season in more magnificent style than ever before, seems destined to to on forever. Its presentation here it the Davis theatre Monday evening, ug. 4th is only one of a hundred enragements that have been made in an-iwer to an imperious demand from all parts of the country for the greatest resent century.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt. The Phocolate Soldier, when its full glory jurst upon New York three years ago, evived, illuminated and enriched the raditions of light opera which seemd to have perished from the earth when Gilbert and Sullivan withdrew from the theatre. Its libretto, an ar-rangement of Arms and the Man, eorge Bernard Shaw's mocking comedy-satire on time-honored social in-titutions in the guise of a Bulgarian war romance, is replete with situaintertainment. But the crowning glory the opera is the music of Oscar Its variety astonished the istener, its delicious melodies cling lo the memory like sweet perfume; from the overture to the finale the pell of the bewitching music is unterrupted and absolute.

The cast of characters include ceila Hughes, Lettie Collins, Lucille Saunders, Charles H. Bowers, Francis Boyle, George Tallman and Sylvian
